BUSINESS BRIEF

Port Staff Recognized for a Safe Work Record in 2007

Employees of the Oregon International Port of Coos Bay achieved a No-Time-Lost Safety Award for 2007 as part of the Port's long-established Safety Training Program. The program and award will be discussed at the Port's February 21, 2008, commission meeting.

During recent years the Port has experienced lower worker's compensation insurance rates due to increased safety training for employees and reduced accidents and lost-time injuries. The Port's worker's compensation experience rate is now below one percent.

Previously Special Districts Association of Oregon recognized the Port's progressive safety training efforts and safety awareness program with a Safety Award in 2004.
